

Media Director

The organisation

Immigration is one of the key debates within UK politics and the media. IMIX is working to ensure that debate includes voices from migrants and those who support them. We work alongside the refugee and migration sector to shift public attitudes on migration and create an open and welcoming Britain for people who make the UK their home. We offer training and support to partners across the UK as well working with journalists to place stories about refugee protection, asylum support and general migration issues.

We're a flexible employer. We know our line of work is tough so well-being and mutual support are important to us.

The person

We are looking for an experienced media director to support our high performing team to work across the migration space to find case studies, train spokespeople, craft messages /campaign material and talk to journalists. We're a small but effective team so we're looking for someone who is as happy thinking strategically as they are briefing journalists on key issues.

We're all about collaboration, open communication and putting the audience first. If you appreciate audience insight, the importance of value-based messaging and why story telling matters when encouraging people to act we'd love to hear from you.

We are working hard on our diversity and are particularly keen to hear from people with lived experience of the UK immigration system. The successful candidate must have the right to work in the UK.
